Biographical Sketch

Imogene King was a pioneer in nursing theory development. Her Conceptual Framework for Nursing and subsequent Theory of Goal Attainment have been influential to the practice of several generations of nurses. Dr. King, born on January 30, 1923 in West Point Iowa, received her diploma in nursing from the St. John Hospital School of Nursing in 1945. She continued on with her education taking both her Bachelor of Science in Nursing and her Master of Science in Nursing at St. Louis University in 1948 and 1957 respectively. She obtained her Ed.D from Teacher's College, Columbia University in 1961. From there she became a professor at Loyola University in Chicago from 1961 to 1966 returning again to develop the Masters in Nursing program from 1972 to 1980. It was during this time that King was actively involved in developing her theories that have been so influential to the profession of nursing. From 1966 to 1968, Dr. King served as the Assistant Chief, Research Grants Branch, Division of Nursing in Washington, D.C. under Dr. Jessie Scott. In 1968, Dr. King assumed the role of the Director of the Nursing School at Ohio State University until 1972, at which time she returned to Loyola University Chicago leaving there in 1980 to complete her academic career at the University of Southern Florida in 1990.

In addition to her academic career, Dr. King spoke at local, regional, national and international conferences on her theory and various topics, as well as continuing to share her wisdom with undergraduate and graduate students by helping them understand and use her theories. Dr. King was an active member in the Florida Nurses Association, the American Nurses Association, and Sigma Theta Tau. Dr. King also had a keen interest in the history of nursing, history of nursing education and in nursing informatics. She developed courses, manuscripts and spoke widely on these topics. Near the time of her death in 2007, Dr. King had plans to publish a memoir entitled “Eyewitness to Nursing History 1942-2000”; however it was never written when Dr. King passed away in St. Petersburg, Florida on December 24, 2007.
