

The 43rd Annual Edward L. Surtz Lecture
in the Humanities

LIVING WITH LITTLE CORPSES

A lecture by Robin Fleming

Professor of History
Boston College

Monday, October 15, 2018
Information Commons
4th Floor Lecture Hall
4:00 – 5:30 p.m.

Reception to Follow

For more information, contact:
Ian Cornelius at icornelius@luc.edu / 773-508-2332

Robin Fleming is Professor of History at Boston College and a 2013 MacArthur Fellow. Her research draws on a vast array of sources to provide new insight into migration, cultural identity, and the lives of women and non-elites in Britain during and after the fall of the Roman Empire, a formative era of European history. She is author of numerous articles and three books, including Britain After Rome: The Fall and Rise c.400 to 1070.

Preparing people to lead extraordinary lives